in which judgment was given about a week ago. Mr. Denny, who appeared for the defendant, made the application, which was granted, conditionally on his paying the amount of judgment, and costs in Court. This has been done to-day, $418.75 having been paid in. In the case of Lee Kuan Chu v. Chun Chuan Hang the judgment was given in favour of plaintiff (for whom Mr. Denny appeared), with costs.

The danger of a typhoon seems to have passed away for the present. The barometer has been slowly and steadily rising the whole of the day and registers to-night at six o'clock, 29.780 against 29.610 at the same hour last evening. The wind has been blowing fresh outside, but no report has come to hand to indicate its having reached anything like a typhoon. The majority of the sampans have returned to this side, and the boat-people seem quite confident that the burst which was anticipated no longer threatens us.

One million kin of Chinese rice, which had been imported to Kobe from Hongkong in a steamer and a sailing vessel, have been sold at the rate of yen 2.60 per 100 kin.

The prospectus has been issued of the Japan Fire Insurance Company, which has just been issued by the Board of Directors. "The objects of the promoters," says the circular, "is to endeavour to establish a Fire Insurance Company upon the mutual principle, slightly modified, which has already met with such complete success in China." The capital is to be one Million Dollars, in 2,000 shares of $500 each, 250 of which have already been taken, and it is proposed to commence operations as soon as 1,000 are subscribed for. Headquarters are to be at Yokohama, with branches at Higo, Nagasaki, Shanghai and Hongkong.

On Friday July 11, when the House of Commons was crowded to hear the arraignment of the Speaker, Prince Christian sat over the clock, and later in the afternoon the seat to his right was occupied by the Marquis Tsing, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Emperor of China, whose dress, a glory of golden silk, stood out in charming relief from the monotony of the black coats of Western civilisation.

LARCENIES.
Ng A Kai, a servant in the employ of Mrs. Sands, had hung his trousers outside his sleeping room window for the purpose of drying them; Kwan A Fung, a street coolie, happening to pass by espied the trousers and was about to appropriate them; when he was surprised in the act, pursued, captured, and given in charge. Defendant made the usual defence, that some one else had done the deed and that he had been arrested by mistake. He got three months' imprisonment with hard labour.

To A Wing, describing himself as an earth coolie, was found in possession of two baskets, the property of a hawk.
Defendant stated that he had asked complainant for the loan of the baskets for the day, and, as he said nothing, he took them away.

Prisoner was sent to goal for six weeks with hard labour.

UNTIMELY VISITS.
Chan A Luk, who admitted a previous conviction of gambling, was found in a shoemaker's shop in Lascar Row this morning between four and five o'clock. Defendant said he had gone to call at the shop for a jacket he had left there. This was denied by the master of the shop, who affirmed that he never saw the defendant before this morning.

A sentence of three months with hard labour, as a rogue and vagabond, will probably reach defendant that the small hours of the morning is not a fitting time to call at people's houses for property which he may have left there.

PEPPER AND SALT.

To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL."

Hongkong, August 26, 1879.
Sir,—I observe that a case in the Police Court has cropped up against Mr. Kwok Achong, a leading native merchant in this Colony, for having kindled a fire in the street near his dwelling, thereby causing much alarm to the inhabitants, and a deal of trouble to the fire brigade. Now, to have done such a trick as this—setting alight the 85 days orthodox mourning for his mother—without first getting the sanction of the proper authorities is simply a piece of arrogance and presumption, which would not have been tolerated in any town in the East, with the bare exception of Hongkong, without serious trouble accruing to the offender; this from the mere risk of setting fire to the adjacent houses whereby lives and property might have been jeopardized by a catastrophe. Then just look at the preposterous fine levied on the offender,—$2. Surely the nature of the case demanded a thorough investigation at the hands of the police before being brought into Court; if found guilty, the culprit should have been dealt with by a heavy fine being imposed on him, and a severe caution administered at the same time; or the case should never have been brought before the Magistrate at all. I will venture to say if the bluff Magistrate of the Island of Tippecanoe and Oocanute, in the Malay peninsula, had had the case in hand, he would have passed sentence of imprisonment with the option of a heavy fine. Where are the fearless and impartial men to be found in China that will draw a proper line of reasoning, and sentence accordingly? Here's a case of a serious nature where the offending party gets fined $2, and shuffles off attending the Magistrate's summons to boot, because he is a rich Chinaman forsooth! Another unfortunate European not long ago committed the crime—mark the expression—of stowing himself away in a P. & O. steamer from Yokohama, to this port, just because the poor fellow was "hard up," and seeking his bread; he got sentenced to one month's imprisonment in H. M. Gaol to work a dry turbine, grinding wind. Wonderful are the vagaries of Magistrate's decisions in China sometimes!

You have a letter in your Saturday's issue, I observe, from a correspondent in Penang about the Ananda case referred to in your "Town Talk" some time ago; that usually masterly-inactive Administrator having vetoed the Magistrate and Marine Court of Inquiry's finding of three months' suspension of certificate against Captain Bowers, who was acting as mate of the vessel at the time when the accident to the boilers occurred. It appears that the Administrator has acted against all precedent in allowing Captain Bowers to take command of the vessel on a foreign voyage to Mangoon, or Magni Archipelago, on a suspended certificate. This is not the first time, however, that the Colonel has carried matters with a high hand lately—as witnessed the case in the Singapore High Court the other day, between the Judge and himself. What a pity it is that he was not an energetic during the Chinese riots in Penang in the year '87; the public then would have had much to be thankful for, and their lives would never have been in jeopardy, or themselves in bodily fear of harm! However in the natural course of events, when the veil is lifted, one can see sometimes into the mystery of things. Well, in the matter of Captain Bowers, we can see how he aids a friend and protects a foe. Does any one remember the case of poor Captain Lloyd, the Superintendent of the Ding-Ding, losing his life by being assassinated by a lot of Chinese scoundrels some time back—perhaps 12 or 13 months ago? And does any one remember the "dressing down" the then Lieut. Governor of Penang received at the hands of the Straits Press for the so-called neglect and dereliction of a common duty in that case? If not, the files can be found and perused. They will show that the Colonel's champion was one Captain Bowers, who in a vain effort of despair tried to exonerate his friend, the Lieut. Governor from all blame in the matter of poor Lloyd's untimely end, and to prove the great ability the Colonel displayed in bringing the murderers to justice. Vain however were the lugubrious tales he unfolded, as the public would never believe him. So one may easily guess the worthy feelings that animated the Administrator's decision in throwing overboard the Marine Court's sentence in the case of the Ananda, and allowing his friend the Captain to go in command of the vessel; while poor Tommy Child (the original Captain) languishes under the ban of the Court's judgment. Verily, there are wheels within wheels, and side winds are still blowing very auspiciously and favourably for those who are accepted as the favoured of the great. What shall be done to the man whom the Administrator delighteth to honor? Well, I presume that a great deal will be done ere long—not with the Captain, but with the Colonel; and if the Court of Inquiry only stick to their finding, we shall have such a pretty little squabble out of the case yet! All I can say is, "Go in, Godlike!" You are known to be of the true metal, staunch, and true and, next to Mr. Reade of Singapore, Consul General for Netherlands India—one of the most fearless, and independent men of the Straits Settlements. Long may you yield your baton of office with the same inflexible, and impartial spirit, that has so long and meritoriously characterized your decisions.

Looking over some old files of the China Mail I find that a correspondent "Shiao" complains of the disreputable state of Stanley Street, and I can quite endorse his opinion, as a more dangerous street is not to be found in the Colony. It would appear that the remarks of "Shiao" have not reached home, and I fear the authorities of Trinity Square are "rather hard in the horn," and that you can make as much impression on them as "a blister on a wooden leg." The condition of the street is now, I consider, both a dangerous, and disgraceful one, and it will be a pity if any one outside "Trinity Square" should fall down and break their limbs, or smash their heads against the formidable peaks, and boulders running up more than a foot high, and plentifully dispersed along the thoroughfare. Well, all this state of things comes of having only one man to do the work, and allowing the question of what and how much work shall be done to lie entirely in that man's option. The chronic failure of many of these little but important necessary works being carried out is caused by the Government Officials having the works in their own hands; and this order of things can only be rectified by the citizens of the town organizing a Council or Municipality, and taking the Public Works in their own hands; then they would know where the revenues went to, and for what purposes they were expended. At present the scales have not fallen from their eyes, and they are seeing "as through a glass darkly," but I hope some unit as I am, by plugging at this bull's-eye shot after shot, at occasional intervals, that I shall make an impression in the right quarter sooner or later.

The Chinese gun-boat Wang Nien Ting left port this day bound for Foochow, whether she is conveying some 300 bachelors of arts who are proceeding to the provincial capital to compete for the second degree. We understand that these candidates are provided with a free passage, with the exception of $1 each, paid to the cook for food on the way.

The following charters were effected in Amoy:

The Hankow reports having fallen in with the German brig Harlequin on the 10th August, while off the North-East Promontory. She was in distress, but declined assistance. The vessel was afterwards towed into Chefoo by the Wolf.

In another column we publish a translation of a proclamation issued on the 18th instant by the Governor of the adjoining province of Chekiang in regard to military matters. The Governor promises increased pay to soldiers to induce people to enlist, and to encourage the troops to drill more diligently. It would be interesting to know whether or not this movement has any reference to the Loohoo difficulty. There can be no doubt that more activity is being displayed in military and naval affairs in China at the present time than is usual, and there must be some reason for this fact.

Our Neechwang correspondent, writing under date of August 15th, says: "We have had very heavy rainfalls more or less ever since St. Swithin's day. The Native St. Swithin's was on the 16th July—the day after the Simon Pure—and on both days it poured, so that we are not surprised at the wet weather since then. Unfortunately the crops, we hear, have been suffering, and much distress will occur when Jack Frost sets in."

Manila.

(Translated from our Manila Exchange.)

The steamer Paragua, (whose casualty we reported the other day) on her way from the port of Cullion in Calamianes to Manila, struck a rock on Aninac reef on the morning of the 19th, and stranded. It appears that the vessel was being navigated with all due precautions, having deviated from the reef about two miles according to the chart, when suddenly she struck a rock, knocking a hole in her bottom, which was successfully stopped. No further danger was feared at the time and she was proceeding in order to reach the Praya where she should be beached to get the damage already received more fully repaired, when she struck another rock with her keel, and the vessel commenced to fill, the water rushing into the engine-room, and the engines being consequently stopped. While in this situation the steamer Pancy on her voyage out with the mail; and the latter steamer took the mails and passengers of the stranded vessel on board, and returned to Manila. It is hoped that the Paragua is in a very good condition to be floated off. The steamer Pancy left on the 22nd with the necessary materials to render assistance. Captain Gil has remained by the vessel under his command.

An auction sale of left tobacco was held on the 18th, when 7814 quintales were offered; out of which only 668 quintales were sold for a total sum of $18,424.

There was no offer made at the sixth sale of the American barque Masonic, which took place on the 18th.

During the last fortnight of August, there were imported into these islands 191,880 dollars' worth in Spanish silver coins; and exported during the same period 192,200 dollars' worth in Spanish gold coins, and 4600 dollars' worth in gold dust.

Charters effected up to August 16th, are:—British barque Hope, for the Channel Islands, sugar at 35; British barque Dundonald, for London, wet sugar at 35; and hemp at 40; American ship Cutty Sark, for New York, private.

(Times.)

What is the reason, may we ask, that the finding of the Official Marine Court of Enquiry (which finding was given early in June last) which sat in Penang, into the accident which occurred to the boiler of the S. S. Ananda while on a voyage from this port to Penang, has not been published in the Government Gazette up to this date.

The Court of Inquiry, on the occasion, so we learn by the Penang Gazette, but not by the Official Gazette of the Settlements, ruled that the certificate of the master, Captain Child, should be suspended for three months; that of Captain Bowers, the chief officer, for 3 months; that of the chief Engineer, Mr. Aitken, for 6 months; while the certificate of the 2nd Engineer, Mr. Hornsley, was cancelled, and the 3rd Engineer was severely reprimanded, as were also all the others.

In the face of this finding, which our contemporary, the Ananda is now being sailed under the command of Captain Bowers, by the express consent of the Government! We have already expressed our hope that one of the Unofficial members will question the Government on this subject.

It is rumoured in legal circles here that, perhaps, Mr. Justice Ford will be offered the post of Chief-Justice of Ceylon vacant by the resignation of Sir John Phear, but we consider it is very improbable that Mr. Ford will be offered the appointment. Some Indian Judge of long experience, possibly, succeed Sir John Phear.

The troopship Orontes, which took home the Prince Imperial's body, had amongst its wounded passengers, Captain Hinman, now of the 57th Regiment or "Die Hardies."

Some of our readers may remember that Captain Hinman, then a Lieutenant in H. M.'s 10th, was in command at the storming of the Paroa stockade in the Negri Sembilan, when Lieutenant Peyton of the 10th and Captain Murray, H. M.'s Resident in Sungei Ujong, with his dog, distinguished themselves. Captain Hinman received his wounds in the Paroa affair, but escaped without a scratch. He has not been so fortunate in Zululand. Captain Hinman was seriously wounded in the upper third of the right leg by a round bullet (which he preserves as a souvenir) at the battle of Ginghlovu, on the 22nd of April. The shot completely smashed the fibula, but as ten pieces of bone have been extracted, he is now well and convalescent. He was removed to Netley Hospital, where he will be the first inmate of the four wards which have been recently erected for the use of sick and wounded officers. He is loud in his praises of the pluck and dash displayed by the Zulus, and he has no hesitation in saying that no European troops would have come up time after time to the intrenchments in the face of the terrible fire which mowed them down like grass. One Zulu, he noticed, still struggled onward after receiving five shots from the Gatling; and a young black, who could not be more than 14 years of age, succeeded in forcing his way to within 15 yards of the intrenchments, when he was captured by a blue-jacket and drawn within the shelter.

The appearance of things looking suspicious, the intrenchments were widened to double their breadth as an extra precaution; and no sooner was the work accomplished than the attention of Captain Hinman was directed on the night of the 2nd of April, about 9 o'clock, to the peculiar aspect of the tall grass, which was observed to wave in a contrary direction to the wind. Feeling assured that this enemy was concealed in the grass, the Captain formed up his company, in four lines, so that there should always be two ranks with their rifles loaded, and ordered them to fire among it. Immediately afterwards a couple of Zulus jumped up with a loud shriek and fell dead. Contrary to general opinion, the enemy make their attacks in comparative silence. After skirmishing for some time they advance with great rapidity in lines, the moment one falls another comes forward and carrying onward the attack.

MR. HENNESSY AT HAKODATE.

(Japan Herald.)

On reviewing Mr. Pope Hennessy's public utterances during his visit to this country, we have come to the conclusion that he is a gentleman of an extremely sympathetic temperament, and possessed of a very imaginative, and it may be said slightly romantic turn of mind, to whom if fiction be not facts, in the words of one of his countrymen, "then so much the worse for the facts."

Of all the arts in which Irishmen peculiarly excel,—and they boast many accomplishments, to which your more dull, and plodding Englishmen can, indeed, make but faint approach,—that of the successful practice of blarney is most pre-eminent. It is easy of the soil, and flourishes with such a spontaneity, and exuberance in the land of Mr. Hennessy's birth, as to make the natives of it half unconscious of its universality, and to be life-long practice such adepts as to not know clearly to what extent, in the daily intercourse of life, they are deceiving themselves, or are occupied in deceiving others.

In a country where deception and politeness are universal, nay, almost convertible terms, nothing is made greater use of than flattery, and Mr. Hennessy has taken care to employ plenty of it, laying it on so thick that either he, or some of the objects of it, might well blush for the grossness of its extent.

At Hakodate, the other day, in response to an address from the Japanese merchants of that place, Mr. Hennessy again ventilated his eloquence,—the members of the Tokio Chamber of Commerce some weeks ago, as will be remembered, being the first to be indulged with the felicity of tasting the quality of it. In the speech delivered by him on that occasion, the marvellousness of the statistics he made use of excited universal surprise, and provoked much believing and hostile criticism; but his last utterance was principally remarkable for its particularly eulogistic character. Mr. Hennessy lavished praise without stint on almost everybody or everything he could think of, in connection with his theme.

As to the figures he made use of in his first address, he shuffed the responsibility for them on to a predecessor in office, Sir Richard Macdonnell. But that line of action is, under the circumstances, scarcely permissible. Sir Richard Macdonnell is absent and can no longer answer for himself; and it must not be forgotten that Mr. Hennessy has been for more than two years Governor of Hongkong, and might fairly be presumed to be acquainted with the actual extent of the commerce of the port. Moreover, he did not give the figures as being those of his predecessor at all, but as being those of "last year." The name of Sir Richard Macdonnell may, therefore, be left out of the question, and Mr. Hennessy must find courage to face the situation in which his own statements have placed him.

Amongst the objects of Mr. Hennessy's encomiums, the Japanese Minister of Finance occupies decidedly the most distinguished position. He is at once, we are told, "hard working and popular," "a typical statesman of young Japan." As a Finance Minister, Mr. Hennessy "had no hesitation in saying that Mr. Okuma was not surpassed by any Finance Minister in the world." Really, Mr. Hennessy almost takes a person's breath away by the gushing and positive terms in which he deems himself qualified to speak of Mr. Okuma's fitness for the office he holds. Considering that the speaker had but a few days' acquaintance with the Minister, and that he could not converse with him in his native tongue, a little more hesitation in talking of what he could really know little about would have better become him. "Wonder," we have been told, "is the result of ignorance," it is not surprising then to find Mr. Hennessy, in continuation of his fervid utterances about Mr. Okuma, exclaiming, "What a wonderful labour he has accomplished! Mr. Gladstone's brilliant finance,—Sir Stafford Northcote's success as Chancellor of the Exchequer, appear common-places contrasted with what Mr. Okuma has had to do." In corroboration of Mr. Okuma's prodigious achievements, beside which Mr. Gladstone and Sir Stafford Northcote are told to hide their diminished heads, Mr. Hennessy assures us that he has actually "seen his array of well-disciplined clerks in the finance departments working at their journals, cash-books, and ledgers, on the English system; and in remote towns like Sendai, he had witnessed Mr. Okuma's instructions fully carried out in all their details." All this, in the words of Domitius Samspon, may be set down as "prodigious."

Who would for a moment have suspected it? They actually keep books in the Finance Department, and Government officers, strange to say, are to be found in country places, carrying out the orders they receive from the central office. "It was as if in England a sudden spring had been made from the confused taxation and expenditure of the Norman Conquest to the days of Gladstone." Really Mr. Hennessy's sweets are almost too cloying for the ordinary palate; and if Mr. Okuma swallows in sincerity all the complimentary observations it has pleased Mr. Hennessy to make about him, his faith in human nature had need be great, and belief in Mr. Hennessy's integrity of utterance extensive.

But dropping Mr. Okuma, Mr. Hennessy, as a "well-meaning stranger," has, of course, a word of praise for the Government. There is nothing stingy about him, he lavishes compliments all round. The Government is both "thoroughly well informed and sensible." It confers numerous advantages upon the people of Yesso. It encourages immigration by a wise system of land tenure and taxes. It promotes intelligence by a system of popular education unsurpassed by any country in the world, "except, perhaps, the United States." The administration of justice which the speaker saw in operation "would indeed be a boon to some European nations"; the prison at Hakodate was a model one; and the criminals admirably dealt with. General Kuwada and the indefatigable officers of the Kaitakushi are credited with raising up "a rising generation of keen and industrious wealth producers," whilst "every practical discovery of modern science is utilised by General Kuwada and his staff." Even the Mitsu Bishi Company was not forgotten in the exuberant eulogies of the speaker, fortifying himself, however, in this instance, with the previously expressed #### opinion of the Yokohama Chamber of Commerce.

But we shall never have done in exhausting the list of the objects of Mr. Hennessy's encomium, and shall, we fear, tire our readers' patience. The climate,—the wheat,—the oats,—the barley, but more especially the mealy potatoes of the island, which, with the effusive gusto of an Irishman well acquainted with the virtues of that excellent esculent, he declared to be "as well flavoured as the South of Ireland productions." But in order that nothing should be passed over,—the cows, oxen, and hardy breed of horses,—all came in for a share of approbation, winding up with the observation that, admirable as all these productions were, in the speaker's estimation these islands brought forth what "was far more profitable than even cereals and beef of European quality,—a race of sterling men."

Mr. Hennessy is certainly entitled to be considered a wonderful artist in painting everything coul de rose; he handles the brush with a skill which only long use could give; but his picture of Japan and its products, animal, vegetable, and human, has no shade; its brightness, when shown by the lights of his imagination, may perhaps dazzle ordinary observers by its extraordinary lustre, but its truth to nature will be denied by those whose prolonged residence in the country has given them a more accurate knowledge of the realities of things than a superficial and flattering observer, such as Mr. Hennessy undoubtedly is, can make any just pretensions to possess. Viewed by the sober lights of common sense and ordinary experience, Mr. Hennessy's drawing is very incorrect, and the colour he delights in quite too exaggerated and gaudy to last.

It is not to be doubted that Mr. Hennessy's visit to Japan has proved a pleasure to himself and to his entertainers, who have not failed to ingratiate themselves in his estimation by their politeness, generosity, and hospitality. It is fair to presume that his vivid, but in many respects superficial and erroneous impressions will linger long in his memory. Like a child at the play, whose imagination is taken captive,—who is willing to believe everything real, but who has no opportunity to see the actualities behind the drop, Mr. Hennessy returns home dazzled and dazzled. In his inexperience and willingness to view everything in the most favourable light, he, without question, accepts tinsel as gold, and it was no part of the business of his hosts to undeceive him.

Whilst there are many things in Japan of hopeful augury, and many acts of the Government meriting good words from Mr. Hennessy and deserving of recognition and encouragement, yet he appears to have been so completely carried away by the fervor of a too readily excited imagination, and to have been filled with a desire to be so effusively gracious towards those with whom he was brought in contact, as to render his conclusions unsound. Those who would really know Japan must look to other sources than to Mr. Hennessy's utterances for guidance in their quest. Mr. Hennessy is an enthusiast; he speaks dogmatically about what he can know little or nothing of; his judgment is defective and to be distrusted. The same uncontrolled power of magnifying that he recently applied to the commerce of Hongkong, he brings to bear on Japan, which in turn provokes enquiry, and that is fatal. Mr. Hennessy as a speaker does not appear to be embarrassed by many scruples. He is not deterred from being dogmatic by lack of knowledge, and he has quite an aptitude for rendering facts subservient to the purposes of his oratory.

JAPAN AND TREATY REVISION.

No impartial observer of the devious ways of Japanese statecraft can speak with even a semblance of respect of the proceedings of the Imperial Government in connection with treaty revision. When revision was first talked about, Japan, through her own envoys to the great powers, and through the representatives of those powers at her own court, received the most courteous and friendly assurances. At an anxious and official political period, when the attention was absorbed in affairs of gravity and weight intimately connected with the welfare of their own country; when the Governments of the other great powers were also engaged in the mighty affairs of Europe, consideration for Japan, and a sincere desire to accede to her wishes upon a matter apparently considered by her statements to be of importance, prompted the European powers to offer to hold a conference for the purpose of treaty revision in London. This proposal, made in the most friendly spirit, was not accepted, and the action, originally initiated by themselves in Europe, was again transferred to Japan, the representatives of the nation having been recalled from London and Berlin to take part in the conference whenever it may be held. At this time, however, no negotiations are in progress; the Government are quite silent, and the revision of the treaties and tariff is apparently as far off as it was in 1872 when his Excellency Iwakura returned from his visit to Europe. No propositions have been put forward that can be discussed; the demand is solely for the restoration of sovereign rights made by a nation which does not, as many very recent events emphatically declare, understand the duties and responsibilities of a sovereign power. We have an earnest desire to avoid hurting the fine susceptibilities of any Japanese, but it would be false delicacy on our part to abstain from commenting upon the importance the Government and the Press seem to attach to the revision of the treaties. Years have been consumed; envoys have been commissioned and recalled; despatches have been written, and foreign journals have been subsidised to bolster up a cause which is constantly in danger of destruction by the arguments of the most elementary reasoners; and still no result is apparent. A portion of the Government and of the Japanese Press is under the impression that the question is sufficiently important to excite Europe to action. It is time these foolish and exaggerated ideas came to an end, and that Japan should know the actual truth of the matter. Europe is profoundly and supremely indifferent to when and how Japan chooses to proceed with the long-threatened revision. It is the trade of this country that feels the inaction which is now openly ascribed to the incompetence of any Japanese statesmen to explain, in a clear and reasonable manner, what Japan really requires foreign powers to do. Until some minister is found with mental capacity sufficient to deal with a subject far beyond the narrow views of an interested official clique, treaty revision may be assigned to the region of obscure inaction in which it has reposed for so many years.—Japan Gazette.
